

Dan Goldwin will explore three critical fronts in the fight against antisemitism—the challenges facing Jewish communities across Chicagoland, the evolving U.S.–Israel relationship following the elections, and the ongoing policy and advocacy battles taking place in Springfield.

Antisemitism: Three Fronts. One Fight. will offer insight into what's happening locally, nationally, and in Israel—and what these developments mean for the Jewish community.

Dan is Chief Public Affairs Officer for the Jewish United Fund/Jewish Federation of Chicago, overseeing the Jewish Community Relations Council (JCRC) and Government Affairs Department and leading advocacy efforts on behalf of Chicago's Jewish community. Before joining JUF in 2018, he held leadership roles with AIPAC and Israel Bonds and previously worked as an attorney and consultant. Goldwin also serves on the City of Chicago's Commission on Human Relations and was selected for the inaugural cohort of Israeli President Isaac Herzog's Voice of the People initiative.
