This Week's Parashah

Rebecca conceives twins. At birth, the first to emerge is the red and hairy Esau; the other, born holding Esau's heel, is called Jacob. Esau is a hunter; Jacob is a quiet individual, who chooses to stay in camp. Isaac favors Esau, but Rebecca loves Jacob. One day, while Jacob is cooking a stew, Esau comes in starving and demands some food. As payment, Jacob insists that Esau give him his birthright. Sometime later, an aged Isaac decides that it is time to bless his older son Esau. Isaac directs Esau to hunt game and prepare a meal. After Isaac partakes of the meal, he will bless Esau. Rebecca overhears the conversation and helps Jacob assume Esau's identity at his father's bedside. The deception works and Jacob receives the blessing meant for the older son. Rebecca learns that Esau plans revenge against Jacob and so she tells Jacob to flee to Haran, to the home of her brother Laban.

Today's Haftarah

Malachi was the last of the prophets. The second Temple has just been rebuilt, yet the people are discouraged. Malachi criticizes the Priests for not providing a good example for the Israelites. Malachi speaks of the reality of God. God will live on beyond the current struggles of the day. Malachi asks, "Have we not all one Father? Has not one God created us? And why do we deal treacherously every man against his brother?" Malachi insists that Israel must be led back to God and an ethical life. The link between the two readings is established immediately. Just as Rebecca states her strong preference for Jacob in the Torah reading, Malachi states: "'I have shown you love,' said the Lord. But you ask: 'How have you shown us love...Esau is Jacob's brother; yet I have accepted Jacob and have rejected Esau.'" The Hebrew text used for "accept" is "ohav" - a word literally meaning "loved." It is the same word used by Rebecca to show her preference for Jacob.
