This Week's Parashah

In the third month after the Exodus, the people enter the wilderness of Sinai and encamp by Mount Sinai. God tells the people through Moses that if they will obey God's teachings, they will be for God a "kingdom of priests and a holy nation." The people respond as one, saying, "All that the Lord has spoken we will do." After the Israelites wait a period of three days for purification, God appears to them in a cloud of smoke and fire on the mountain and proclaims the Ten Commandments. The Children of Israel tremble at the sound of the thunder and the spectacle of the lightning as God speaks to them. They ask Moses to act as God's spokesman out of fear that they will die if they hear God speak directly to them. From that point until Moses' death, God speaks to the people through Moses. God tells Moses to remind the Israelites that they themselves had heard God speak. Therefore, they are to hold fast in their resolve to worship no idols. Instead of praying to graven images, the Israelites are to offer sacrifices to God on altars built of earth.

Today's Haftarah

Isaiah reports witnessing the angels who surround God's throne and call out to one another: "Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts; The whole earth is full of His glory." This line appears in the Kedushah section of the Amidah. Isaiah understands that God is the Supreme Being and has power over all. When God, through revelation, asks Isaiah to carry God's message to the Jewish people, Isaiah, like Moses, declares himself to be unworthy. But God is able to convince Isaiah to speak on God's behalf to the people. And it is Isaiah who tells Ahaz, the king of Judah, that God does not want him to fear the rulers of Aram and Ephraim.
