This Week's Parashah

Moses reminds the Israelites to observe the Sabbath as a day of rest. No fires are to be lit. Moses reviews God's building instructions for the Tabernacle. He asks the people to bring gifts to use in its construction. He appoints Bezalel and Oholiab, selected by God, to be the chief artisans. Bezalel and Oholiab are also responsible for supervising the other skilled craftspeople who will take part in the construction. The Israelites respond to Moses' call with gifts of gold, silver and brass, fine fabrics and precious stones, and spices and oil. The people are so generous with their offerings that Moses asks the people to refrain from bringing any more. The skilled artisans make the cloth covering and the goat's hair tent over the Tabernacle, as well as the curtain, and the screen for the entrance to the Tabernacle. Bezalel makes the gold-covered Ark of acacia wood and the cherubim on the Ark cover. He makes the table for the bread of display, the seven-branched menorah, the altars and the copper washbowl and stand. The appearance and construction of the vestments for officiating in the sanctuary are presented in great detail. Everything is brought before Moses for inspection. All work had been performed and completed as God

Today's Haftarah

This is a special maftir reading for Shabbat Hahodesh. It describes the first night of Passover. Notable features include eating the Pesah lamb sacrifice with unleavened bread and bitter herbs, and painting the blood of the sacrificed lamb on the doorposts of Israelite houses. The passage, containing both the story and various laws of Pesah, connects us to our ancient past and prods us to accelerate preparations for Pesah, which is only a few weeks away.
