This Week's Parashah

Noah is a righteous person in his generation. The rest of humanity, however, is corrupt and God decides to destroy it. God commands Noah to build an ark and to bring into it seven pairs (male and female) of all "clean" animals (suitable for sacrifice) and one pair of all "unclean" animals found on earth, along with his wife, three sons and their wives. God causes the rains to fall for 40 days and nights, and the entire earth is flooded. All living creatures not on the ark are destroyed. After the flood waters subside, Noah, his family, and the animals that had been saved, descend from the ark and begin to repopulate the earth. God promises not to destroy the earth again, symbolizing this covenant with humanity by the rainbow. As the earth repopulates, all its inhabitants speak the same language. They decide to build a city and a tower that would reach to the sky, in order to make a name for themselves. Displeased, God confounds the people's speech, scattering them all over the earth. Ten generations later, Avram is born, descended from Noah's son Shem.

Today's Haftarah

God compares the land of Israel to a barren woman because her children - the people of Israel - are in exile. God had caused them to be expelled from the land, angered by their transgressions. But God's compassion is overwhelming, and the people will now experience God's unending kindness. God tells Zion to rejoice – the exile will not last long, and the children of Israel will be returned to their land. Peace will come back to Zion when her people - the builders of the future - return from their exile in Babylon: "And all your children shall be taught of the Lord; and great shall be the peace of your children."
